The Best Spring Medicine.

"In the spring of 1887 I was all run down. I would get up in the morning with so tired a feeling, and was so weak that I could hardly get around. I bought a bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, and before I had taken it a week I felt very much better. I can cheefully recomnend it to all who need a building up and strengthening medicine." Mrs. B. Revelation of Some of the Won ders of This Enlightened Age.

Like Unto Fairyland - Traveling 1,000 Miles an Hour-Fritz Napoleon Smith and the Remarkable Features of the " Earth Chronicle."

Following are interesting extracts taken from Jules Verne's highly entertaining article in the Forum entitled: "In the year

Little though they seem to think of it, the people of this twenty-ninth century live continually in fairyland. Surfeited as they are with marvels, they are indifferent in presence of each new marvel. To them all seems natural. Could they but duly appreseems natural. Could they but duty appro-ciate the refinements of civilization in our day; could they but compare the present with the past, and so better comprehend the advance we have made! How much fairer they would find our modern towns, with populations amounting sometimes to 10,000,000 souls; their streets 300 feet wide, their houses 1,000 feet in height; with a temperature the same in all seasons; with their lines of aerial locomotion crossing the sky in every direction! * * * Think of the railroads of the olden time, and you will the raircoats of the older time, and you wan be able to appreciate the pneumatic tubes through which to-day one travels at the rate of 1,000 miles an hour. Would not our contemporaries prize the telephone and the telephote more highly if they had not forgotten the telegraph?

* * * Hence is sprung a pleiad of inventors, its brightest star being our great Joseph Jackson. To Jackson we are indebted for those wonderful instruments, the new accumulators. Some of these absorb and condense the living force contained in the sun's rays; others, the electricity stored in our globe; others, again, the energy coming from whatever source, as a energy coming from whatever source, as a waterfall, a stream, the winds, etc. He. too, it was that invented the transformer, a more wonderful contrivance still, which takes the living force from the accumu-JOB PRINTING Lakes the living force from the accumulator, and, on the simple pressure of a button, gives it back to space in whatever form may be desired, whether as heat, light, electricity, or mechanical force, after having first obtained from it the work required. From the day when these two instruments vere contrived is to be dated th true progress. They have put into the hands of man a power that is almost in-finite. As for their applications, they are numberless. Mitigating the rigors winter, by giving back to the atmosph the surplus heat stored up during the summer, they have revolutionized agriculture. By supplying motive power for aerial navigation, they have given to commerce a mighty impetus. To them we are indebted for the continuous production of electricity without patteries or dynamos, of light with-out combustion or incandescence, and for an unfailing supply of mechanical energy for all the needs of industry.

* * * When two hundred years ago the political center of the United States was transferred from Washington to Centropolis, the Manhattan Chronicle, founded many years previous by George Washington Smith, followed the Govern-ment and assumed the name of Earth Chronicle. Pressed on all sides by rival journals of a more modern type, it was continually in danger of collapse. Twenty years ago its subscription list contained but a few hundred thousand names, and then Mr. Fritz Napoleon Smith—remote descendant of the original founder and owner—bought it for a mere trifle and originated telep journalism:

* * * Instead of being printed, the Earth Chronicle is every morning spoken to subscribers, who, in interesting conversations with reporters, statesmen and accutists, learn the news of the day. Furthermore, each subscriber owns a phonograph, and to this instrument he leaves the task of gathering the news whenever be happens not to be in a mood to listen directly himself. As for purchases of single copies, they can at a very trifling cost learn all that is in the paper of the day at any of the numerous phonographs set up nearly everywhere.

In the course of a few years the number of subscribers grew to be eighty-five millions, and Smith's wealth went on growing, till now it reaches the almost unimaginable figure of ten billion dollars. This lucky hit has enabled him to erect his new building in Two Hundred and Fifty-third avenue, a vastedifice with four facades, each 3,250 feet in length, over which proudly floats the hundred-starred flag of the Union. * * *

Owing to "the progress of hygiene which dred-starred flag of the Union. * * *

Owing to "the progress of hygiene which abates all the old sources of unhealthfulness to the compounding and preparing of food according to scientific principles"—which is received through food-pipes from the Grand Alimentation Company's establishment—and to the fact that "the stmosphere is freed from the micro-organisms that formerly used to swarm in it," Mr. Smith is enabled to withstand the tremendous strain under which he is constantly placed in the performance of his multifarious duties. "Vain the attempt to estimate the amount of labor he undergoes."

This morning Mr. Fritz Napoleon Smith awoke in a very bad humor. His wife having left for France eight days ago, he was feeling disconsolate. * * The first thing that Mr. Smith does is to connect his phonotelephote, the wires of which communicate with his Parls mansion. The telephote! Here is another of the great tri-umphs of science in our time. The trans-mission of speech is an old story; the trans-mission of images by means of sensitive mirrors connected by wires is a thing but of yesterday.

nouncing a name—his name—Fritz! The delightful vision gave a happier turn to Mr. Smith's thoughts. And now, at the call of imperative duty, light-hearted he springs from his bed and enters his mechanical dresser. Two minutes later the machine deposited him all dressed at the threshold of his of-fice. The round of journalistic work was now begun. First he enters the hall of the novel writers, a vast apartment crowned with an enormous transparent cupols. In one corner is a telephone, through which a hundred Earth Chronicle litterateurs in turn recount to the public in daily installments a hundred novels. * * * Mr. Smith continues his round and enters the reporters' hall. Here 1,500 reporters,

mr. Since contains an experiment of the reporters, in their respective places, facing an equal number of telephones, are communicating to the subscribers the news of the world as gathered during the night. * * Thus the subscribers not only hear the news but see the occurrences. When an incident is described that is already past, photographs of its main features are transmitted with the narrative. * *

Mr. Smith passed into the next hall, an enormous gallery upward of 3,300 feet in length, devoted to atmospheric advertising. * * This, too, is one of Mr. Fritz Napoleon Smith's ideas, and in the Earth Chronicle building a thousand projectors are constantly engaged in displaying upon the clouds these mammoth advertisements. *

Next, from the advertisement hall he passes to the reception chamber, where the passes to the reception chamber, where the Ambassadors accredited to the American Government are awaiting him desirous of having a word of counsel or advice from having a word of counsel or advice from the all-powerful editor. A discussion was going on when he entered. "Your Excel-lency will pardon me," the French Am-bassador was saying to the Russian, "but I see nothing in the map of Europe that requires change. 'The North for the Slavs?' Why yes, of course; but the South for the Latins. Our common frontier, the Rhine, it seems to me, serves very well. Besides, my government, as you must know, will firmly oppose every movement, not only against Paris, our capitol, or our two great prefectures, Rome and Madrid, but also against the kingdom of Jerusalem, the dominion of St. Peter, of which France means to be the trusty defender."

"Well said!" exclaimed Mr. Smith. "How is it," he asked, turning to the Russian Ambassador, "that you Russians are not content with your vast empire, the most extensive in the world, stretching from the banks of the Rhine to the Celestial mountains and the Kara-Korum, whose shores ar washed by the Frozen Ocean, the Atlantic, the Mediterranean and the Indian Ocean? the Mediterranean and the Indian Ocean? Then, what is the use of threats? Is war possible in view of modern inventions—asphyxiating shells capable of being projected a distance of 60 miles, an electric spark of 90 miles, that can at one stroke annihilate a battalion; to say nothing of the plague, the cholera, the yellow fever, that the belligerants might spread among their antagonists mutually, and which would in a few days destroy the greatest armies?" few days destroy the greatest armies?"

"Though, by a just turnabout of things here below, Great Britain has become a colony of the United States, the English are not yet reconciled to the situation. At reg ular intervals they are ever addressing to the American Government vain com-plaints." The Russians have gained control of the Indies, and Australia has an indeof the many

Smith stepped into his air-coach, which was in waiting for him at a window. "Where do you wish to go, sir?" inquired the coachman. "Let me see; I have three hours," Mr.

Smith mused. "Jack, take me to my accunulator works at Niagara."

For Mr. Smith has obtained a lease of the great falls of Niagara. For ages the energy developed by the falls went unutilized. Smith, applying Jackson's invention, now collects this energy, and lets or sells it. His visit to the works took more time than he had anticipated. It was four o'clock when he returned home, just in time for the daily audience which he grants to callers.

Finally, the fourth announced the early solution of a weighty scientific problem. Every one will remember the bold experiment made a hundred years ago by Dr. Nathaniel Faithburn. The doctor, being a firm believer in human hibernation—in other words, in the possibility of our suspending our vital functions and of calling them into action again after a time-resolved to ect the theory to a practical test. *
Reduced to the condition of a mummy, Dr. Faithburn was coffined and laid in a tomb. Time went on. September 25, 2889, being the day set for his resurrection, it was proposed to Mr. Smith that he should permit the second part of the experiment to be performed at his residence this avening.

"Agreed. Be here at ten o'clock," an swered Mr. Smith; and with that the day's andience was closed.

Left alone, Mr. Smith busied himself with examining his accounts—a task of vast mag-nitude, having to do with transactions which involve a daily expenditure of up-ward of $800,000. Fortunately, indeed, the stopendous progress of mechanic art in modern times makes it comparatively easy. Thanks to the Piano Electro-Reckoner, the most complex calculations can be made in a few seconds. In two hours Mr. Smith completed his task. Just in time. Scarcely had he turned over the last page when Dr. Wilkins arrived. After him came the body of Dr. Faithburn, escorted by a numerous company of men of science. They commenced work at once. The casket being laid down in the middle of the room, the telephote was got in readiness. The outer world, already notified, was anxiously ex-pectant, for the whole world could be eye-witnesses of the performance, a reporter meanwhile, like the chorus in the ancient ma, explaining it all viva voce through telephone.

"They are opening the casket," he explained. "Now they are taking Faithburn out of the a veritable mummy, yellow, hard and dry. Strike the body and it resounds like a block of wood. They are now applying heat; now electricity. No result. These experiments are suspended for a moment while Dr. Wilkins makes an examination of the body. Dr. Wilkins, riging, declares the man to be dead. 'Dead!' exclaims every one present. 'Yes,' answers Dr. Wilkins, 'dead!' 'And how long has he been dead!' Dr. Wilkins makes another examination. 'A hundred years,' he replies."
The case stood just as the reporter said. Faithburn was dead, quite certainly dead! "Here is a method that needs improvement," remarked Mr. Smith to Dr. Wilkins, as the scientific committee on hibernation hore the casket out.

Stanley's Route. The reader who is interested in the absorbing report of the march of Henry M. Stanley to the relief of Emin Pasha will be aided in the reading of the report to ascertain the general course of the expedition by taking in hand a good atlas. He should locate Stanley's point of departure about sixty miles up the Aruwimi river, which ters the latter about fifteen milesin a direct line-below the intersection of the first degree of north latitude with the twentyfourth degree of longitude east from Greenwich. This point of departure, says the Record-Union, was at Yambuya, on the lower Aruwimi, where Stanley fortified a post and left his reserve, or rear guard. Very few maps will show the river or the station; the former is often designated as the Biyere, and which Stanley says changes its name as the provinces of different tribes are entered. But the reader can very accurately locate this starting point of the great explorer by fixing upon the spot on the map where the line of longitude twenty-four degrees fifty-one minutes east from Greenwich intersects a line of latitude one degree nine minutes north. From that point Mr. Stanley proceeded almost due north to within one-tenth of a degree from the second degree of latitude, when he moved easterly, with a slight northerly deflection, nearly five degrees, when he turned to the south and moved down to a point one degree and eighteen

A General Guess.

CHICAGO, April 6.—A reliable Washngton correspondent sends his paper a long story of what is believed to be a nearly official statement of the future policy of the Harrison administration. policy of the Harrison administration. He declares that the internal policy will not be materially changed, but a vigorous foreign policy will be pursued. The first thing with the township a strong navy, and to this end the appropriations for naval vessels will be doubled, ocean commerce will be encouraged, Cuba and Samoa be absorbed as of more vital interest to us than any one else, the Nicaraugua Canal will be taken under our protection, and in a general way the external interests of the Nation will be looked after, as the most necessary thing now to be considered for our future welfare.

In Memorium.

Washington, April 6.—A meeting of the members of the Supreme Court Bar to take action on the death of Justice Mathews, was held to-day. The attendence was small on account of the storm. Senator Evarts presided. Senator Edmonds presented a series of resolutions eulogizing the dead Judge, and providing that copies be sent to the Supreme Court and to the widow. They were adopted after euologies being pronounced by Edmonds, ex-Governor Hoodly of Ghio, Gen. C. D. Mussey, W. B. Flippen, W. C. Beckenridge, ex-Senator McDonaid and Senator Evarts. Much enthusiasm was manifested on board the steamer, was manifested on board the steamer, and the air was rent with the sound of steam whistles, and the cheers were long continued. All were in excellent health. The only members of the party who did not return were Ed Williamson and wife, the former being of the Chicago team. He hurt his knee in a game in Paris and they remain in London pending his recovery. They will sail for home about a week hence. On the way up the river the teams were met with cheers from a crowd on the other shore, till they landed at 22d street and went to the landed at 22d street and went to the Fifth Avenue Hotel. The tourists, who have been gone six months and have traveled 32,000 miles, are enthuhave traveled 32,000 miles, are enthusiastic over their trip and the treatment by the people everywhere. Not one of the party has suffered a day's sickness during the journey. Financialy, it is stated that the trip has paid expenses and something more.

Captain Leigh Linch, one of the managers of the party, told an interesting story of the trip to a crowd of eager listeners. Among other things, eager listeners. Among other things, he said: "While our trip was enjoyable from almost every point of view and while we had attentive audiences everywhere, in nearly every case they understood nothing about it, and con-sequently were unable to tell the best points of the play. I believe they un-started out on our tour, who under stood less about the game than the English." In what country was our game the least understood?" Well, I never thought of trying to find out, but I would say that it was less understood in Italy than anywhere else. I think the game will now be generally taken up, at least in the British Isle. If not, another tour of American ball players would not help it, for we have shown them as much as we ever can.

WASHINGTON, April 6 .- It is said the President will go to Baltimore on Monday to take a vessel for a cruise in the Chesapeake Bay.

A driving snow storm which visited this city this morning was made remarkable by flashes of lightning. Among the President's callers were Vandever of California, accompanied by ex-Congressman Markham of Cal-ifornia. Acting upon the recommendation of the Secretary of War, the President will probably order a court martial this afternoon, for the trial of Major George A. Armes, retired, upon the charges of conduct unbecoming to an officer and a gentleman.

Since the disaster at Samoa, Secre-retary Tracy has received propositions from several wrecking companies of-fering to go to Samoa and undertake the work of recovering the guns and other property of value lost in the distruction of the Trenton and Vandalia. Paris, April 6.—The Correctional Tribunal to-day acquitted Senator Naquet and Deputies Laguerre, Laisant and Turquet, leaders of the League of Patriots, and three other members of that organization, of the charges of belonging to a secret society, but imposed a fine of 100 francs each for belonging to a society not authorized by law. The crowd outside the courtroom received the announcement of the result with cries of "Vive la Figne," "Vive Boulagner" and "Vive de Laroude."

Nothing In It. London, April 6 .- The Mayor of Leicester to-day received an anonymous letter warning him of a plot which has been arranged to shoot the Prince of Wales when he attended the race there to-day. Though the authorities placed but little credence in the statement, they took every precaution to insure the safety of his Royal High-ness. Serious Trouble Expected.

FORT DODGE, Iowa, April 6 .- Every day adds to the seriousness of the strained situation of the Des Moines river settlers. Numerous parties connected with the prosecution of the settlers received threatenius notices and letters to day warning them to desist. Chancy Pigman, a prosecuting wit-ness in the conspiracy cases against the settlers, and whose farm has been seized by them, has received the following letter:

"Chancy Pigman—Dear Sir—For the course you have been pursuing and meddling, if you continue, you had better make your peace with God, as you will never raise a crop where you are. This is a sufficient notice to you. Beware or hell will be your fate." (Signed settlers.)

Pigman was formerly a member of the Settlers' Union, and they are eventually afraid he will make public some of their secrets. In view of the impending trouble, evictions have been abandoned for the present.

How to Treat Girls.

A schoolboy writes the Youth's Companion as follows: Boys should always be polite to the girls, however vexing they may be. When anybody is giving anything away always let the girls have their turn first. They like it. Girls are not so strong as boys; their hair is long and their faces are prettier, so you should be gentle with them. If a girl scratches your cheek or spits in your face don't punch her and don't tell her mother. That would be mean. Just hold her tight behind the arms for a minute or two, till she feels you could give it to her if you had a mind to. Then say to her kindly: "Don't do it again, for it is wrong." give her a shake or two and let her go. This is far better than being unkind to her, and she will thank you for your politeness if she's any thing of a girl.

Cruel Bigots.

unvitiated by bile, play their part in the functions of digestion and assimilation. But the artificial acid resulting from the inability of the stomach to convert food received by it into sustenance, is the producer of flatulence and heartburn, which are the most harrassing symptoms of dyspepsia. The best carminative is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Far more effective is it than carbonate of soda, magnesia or other alkaline salts. These invariably weaken the stomach without producing permanent benefit. No man or woman chronically dyspeptic, and corsequently nervous, can be in possession of the full measure of vigor allowed by nature. Therefore, invigorate and regulate the system, and by so doing protect it from malaria, rheumatism and other serious maladies.

Cheap and Very Satisfactory Way of Seeing the World.

That the Pleasures of Anticipation Are Greater Than Those of Participation -Joys of the Mental Tourist.

I wonder if any body but myself ever took a time-table vacation, asks Luke Sharp in the Detroit Free Press. It is such a cheap and delightful way of getting round about this little world of ours, that those who have never indulged in one have missed a great deal of inexpensive pleasure. I have knocked about quite a bit in my time and have seen several places besides Detroit, yet those actual journeys are nothing to my time-table trips.

For instance, the first part of this winter I thought I would like to go down to the City of Mexico. I at once went to a passenger ticket office in Detroit and began to make inquiries and load up with time-tables. One of the great advantages of tables. One of the great advantages of living in America is that you get your time-tables for nothing. Now, in England they make you pay a penny for even the smallest time-table of a railway. It is true that some of the larger railways give you quite a book for the money. You get all particulars of how much it will cost to ship a horse from one part of the country to another; what the tariff on dogs is; what the rules and regulations of the company happen to be: what the law is if you sass a station-master, and what various things you will be fined forty shillings for, but all station-master, and what various things you will be fined forty shillings for, but all this knowledge is pealed. this knowledge is useless to the ordinary man. He prefers to have his penny.

The railroads of America, on the other hand, flood the country with time-tables as free as the waters of the Detroit river—that is, unless you get the water through the pipes of the Water Board.

The men in the Detroit ticket offices are beginning to know me pretty well by this time, and they do not rush away from a cash customer in order to attend to my wants They know that I am a person who saks a great many questions, but who seldom buys a ticket. I think they believe that I am something of a fraud, but my intentions are honorable. For the time being I really believe that I am going to all those places that I inquire about. Take the brief course of the City of Mexico fever, for instance. I got the time tables of the Wabash railroad to St Louis; then the Iron Mountain road to the borders of Mexico and the Mexican Central railroad through to the City of Mexico. Then I zot another time-table by way of Cincinnati; then the Queen & Crescent route to New Orleans, then the Southern Pacific and so on to Mexico. After that I found that I could go to Galveston and take a steamer there to Vera Cruz and go over the New Mexican National road to the capi-ital. Or I could go on to San Antonio by rail and down that way to the National road I then set to work to compare the dif ferent advantages of the different routes. I had great di ficulty in making up my mind which I would take or whether I would go one way and come back the other. There were the delights of visiting the ancient and historical city of New Orieans Galveston had many attractions, and at San Antonio I could see the rains of the Alamo. How I did revel in all those places I got books about them and posted up. Then I read all I could lay my hands on regarding Mexico and what was to be seen there. I found out how much it would cost to go up the big mountain and learned that the guides expected five dollars a day and thought they would be disappointed in their expectations when they struck the under-signed. I got many points on what the cost

Every Description of Book Work Done with Neatof living would be and figured time I could spend on the trip. uld be and figured up how much After that I did what most people of a sensible nature would have done at the first. ESTIMATES FURNISHED ON APPLICATION

I figured up the cost. I figured up the cost.

Then I gave up the trip.

I don't expect that the aforementioned sensible persons will enter into my enthu-siasm on the time-table trip business, but then thoroughly sensible people miss a lot of fun in this world. Anyhow, they don't amass as many time-tables as I do.

Although, as I said before, they charge for their time-tables in Europe, there are many advantages there in the way of tak ing a time-table trip that are not to be had in America. For a shilling or two a man in Europe. Then by a further expenditure of cash he gets, one by one, the valuable guide books of every country there, neat and compact and with a red cover. All this makes a time-table vacation easier and more instructive in Europe than in America. There is another great advantage there for the mythical tourist. The railthere for the mythical tourist. The railway time books and guide books in Europe are made for the people; in America they are made for the railroad companies. For instance, you can't get the rates of fare in an American time-table or railroad guide. I never could understand why it is that the railroads of America are so anxious to conceal their fares from the people. Bradshaw's very complete book gives every railroad fare in Britain, and costs only 6d. Appleton's railroad guide gives no fare at railroad fare in Britain, and costs only 6d. Appleton's railroad guide gives no fare at all, and I imagine does not give a map unless the railroad pays for it. I wanted to find out about the steamers of a large steamship line on my trip to Mexico. There was no mention of the line in Appleton's, so I suppose that line refuses to advertise and so the traveler gets left. Baedecker's guide book gives the names of almost every hotel in Europe and tells honestly whether it is good or bad. It gives the prices by the meal or by the day. The guide book will accept no advertisement of any kind at any cept no advertisement of any kind at any price. It is a book made for the people and it can be depended on.

There is nothing of that kind in America.

However, to the mental tourist all this makes no difference. It is as cheap to stop, "in your mind," at a first-class hotel as at

The philosopher says that the pleasures of anticipation are greater than those of participation. If that is the case I commend my plan of traveling. A time-table tourist has all the fun and has no bills to pay.

There is a dog in Orlando, Fla., with a fine sense of humor, if this story is true as told by a local newspaper: His owner frequently gives him a piece of coin to carry along to market. A day or two ago he gave him a dollar, and the dog was trotting along when he saw a colored man approaching. He stopped a little distance in front of the darkey, dropped the dollar from his mouth to the sidewalk, and then walked to the edge of the pavement, apparently as if he cared nothing for the money. Mr. Darkey walked brisk; up and was in the act of stooping to pick up the money. Mr. Darkey walked briskly up and was in the act of stooping to pick up the money, when the dog flew at him as if to bite, quickly seized the money, and trotted off with an air of "No, you don't," and overtook his owner.

It is claimed to be proven, beyond all doubt, that waters which circulate or stand in leaden pipes or vessels, not only take up particles of lead through mechanical action due to friction, but attack the metal, the result of this being generally lead carbonate. According to the most eminent authorities in this line, minute quantities of lead thus introduced into and accumulating in the system, must rank among the causes of

We do not think that the peanut trade is a branch of the peanut in period of the peanut in a correct to the peanut trade very important to the people in a certain section of our country; that if the crop should fail it would mean suffering and ruin to many people. Peanuts grow in Virginia, Tennessee and Eastern North Carolina, Alabama and Mississippi. The best grade comes from Virginia, and they are known as "goubers;" in Alabama and Mississippi as "pinders." Dealers say that no improvements have been made in the that no improvements have been made in the peanut farms; they are just what they were thirty years ago, although the peanut trade has doubled in nine years. The farms are small, and the crops are cared for by negroes. The nuts are planted in hills negroes. The nuts are planted in hills about a foot apart, in rows about two and one-half feet apart, and are harvested by plowing and turning over with long-handled forks; this shakes off the dirt, when the vines are gathered and shocked about a pole, where they are left to dry, the vines being so placed as to protect the nuts from the rain; mildewed nuts turn black, and are less salable though the nuts may be as sweet A dealer says, in the New York Evening Post, that "the shocks, after they have been built up, are left standing for several weeks, until the nuts are quite dried and cured. They are then stripped from the vines by hand, packed in bugs, and carried to the middleman who handles them for the farmer. By the middleman the nuts are taken to the top floor of a factory, and are scoured and polished by rubbing against each other in a long revolving iron cylinder. Spouts carry them, after cleaning, to the second floor, where they are run through a fanning-mill. From the mill they are de-livered on to an endless apron, made of slats hinged together, and as they travel along on this girls sitting on each side sort them into grades. The nuts are then put into sacks and are ready for shipping. They are brought to New York mostly by steamers, although some come by rail. They are sold here as 'Wilmingtons,' 'Virginians,' 'Tennessee' and 'Spanish.' The

Now Rotten Eggs Are Utilized by the Confectioners of the Hub.

They must utilize pretty nearly every thing in Boston, according to the following anecdote by the correspondent from that city to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. He says Every thing in this world, they say, has some use. Even rotten eggs are sold here at three or four cents a dozen to Hebrews of the lowest class, who appreciate their gamey flavor. This is not the only employment, however, that has been found in Bos ton for back-number products of the barn yard. Only a few days ago a friend of the writer chanced to see a greengrocer in the act of dumping a barrelful of eggs from a city wharf into Massachusetts Bay. While in the very act the tradesman was hastily interrupted by a well-dressed passer-by who exclaimed:

My dear sir, what are you doing!" "Dumping bad eggs," responded th groceryman, briefly.

"Are they hopelessly bad?"

"Awful."

"Past that."

"Give you a dollar for the lot."
"Done," said the groceryman. "But may I ask you what you want them for?"
"Cream puffs," answered the stranger.

"Bad eggs are as good as fresh ones for making them, with a few chemicals thrown in. Pay you a dollar a barrel for all you'll send me. I'm a confectioner. There are great cold-storage houses in Boston, by the way, which are filled every summer with millions of eggs, to be taken out at this season and sold for "strictly fresh' at fabulous prices. People generally are not aware that many of the eggs they buy are brought all the way from China, where a whole no tion has been in the poultry business for seven thousand years.

CHILDREN'S CLOTHING.

Perfect Development Demands That It Should Not Be Too Tight, Much is said in these days concerning the rights of children, but there is certainly no right to which every child is more surely entitled than that of good, sound physical health. One of the first requirements of healthful clothing is that it allow urre-strained action of every organ of the body. This is absolutely essential for perfect development so long as the body is undergo-ing the process of growth. According to Dress, mothers often unwittingly violate this principle in the dressing of their children by compelling them to wear clothing which they have partially outgrown, but which is not sufficiently worn to be discarded. Tight sleeves, tight bands, tight waists, etc., which have become such from the child's increased size, are certainly the child's increased size, are certainly quite as harmful as are those purposely so constructed; and added to this is the fact that the bones and muscles of the tender lit tle ones are far more susceptible to the constriction of tight clothing than are those of persons of older growth.

The clothing of children should always be considered that it can readly be a made that it can readly.

se made that it can readily be entarged to accommodate the growing form, and should secommodate the growing form, and should never fit so snugly as not to allow perfect freedom of movement to every organ. Whatever garments are worn about the chest and waist should always permit of an unrestrained, full inspiration, and it would be an excellent plan if mothers would frequently test the child's breathing capacity by placing a tape measure around its waist when in its night clothing, and allowing it to take a full inspiration, noting the numto take a full inspiration, noting the number of inches' expansion, and then adjusting its clothing to correspond with the measure of the full inspiration, allowing one inch or two more for growth.

When the recent earthquake destroyed a small tussian town in Central Asia this soldier was on duty in the Military Treasury. Although the houses were crashing around him this faithful fellow stood moticuless, waiting death. The only sign which showed that he appreciated his situation was the fact that he raised his hands as soldiers do in prayer. Fortunately a Sergeant in the street saw him amid the ruins and instantly ordered him to quit his post, which he did right him to quit his post, which he did righ

Bogus Pens of Byron

Of course every visitor to Venice takes a look at Lord Byron's pen, in the Armenian Monastery. At least he thinks he does. But it has just come out that some time ago an old monk wearled by the constant in-quiries for a sight of the poet's pen, took a bundle of goose quills and manufactured a whole sheaf of By-ron's pens, which he distributed to the younger monks for the delectation of enthusiastic sightseers.
